The "close" and "minimize" buttons can be used to navigate quickly through windows within a single application, and

The "window" button, can, for example, go back through your recently opened windows. The "minimize" button can be used to minimize a window; the window contents are transparent, or only the title bar is visible, or only the titlebar and a "resize grip". The "maximize" button can be used to maximize a window so that only the title bar and resizing grip are visible. The "close" button can be used to close a window. The "window" button can be used to bring up the menu of your next window (only one window is shown at a time). The "minimize" button can be used to bring up the menu of your active window (only one window is shown at a time). The "maximize" button can be used to bring up the menu of the active window if the window is maximized. Each window can be made ghosted, so it looks as if it were covered by the desktop or other windows. The ghosting percentage can be set in two ways, on the menu of the window (left menu button, then "Window") and on the menu of the next window (left menu button, then "Window"). Simply drag window windows to a new desktop. You can create as many desktops as you like. A feature that can be quite useful is the ability to pin windows to a desktop.
