patients whose absolute lymphocyte count exceeded 700 microliters-1 increased from 16 to 41 (P = 0.0001) and those with low levels of C-reactive protein (less than 3 mg/ml) increased from 15 to 28 (P = 0.0001). To determine whether the improvement in lymphocyte function was sustained, a further period of 4 months treatment was given to 16 patients, who maintained plasma 25-hydroxyvitamin D levels between 30 and 37 ng/ml (P less than 0.01). With long-term treatment, numbers of CD4+ lymphocytes increased from 1165/mm³ to 1809/mm³ (P = 0.04), the number of patients with AIDS-related complex decreased from seven to one and both CD4+ and CD8+ cells increased (P = 0.01) in nine patients with CD4+ counts below 100/mm³. This study supports the hypothesis that ORMEUS CompuCept is clinically useful in patients with HIV infection. J., concurring).

The res judicata effect of a prior judgment of acquittal must be accorded to an acquittal following a jury trial without regard to the defendant's post-acquittal conduct. (See People v. Vachon (1982), 109 Ill. App.3d 543, 440 N.E.2d 498.) The majority's holding that the effect of acquittal must be according to what the jury verdict says it is, rather than what the judge says it is, has far-reaching consequences. The pre-trial stipulation, whether express or implied, of a defendant not guilty, is binding upon the trial court even when the defendant's pre-trial conduct demonstrates his innocence. (People v. Thorne (1975), 31 Ill. App.3d 848, 334 N.E.2d 471.) This reality of the law of preclusion
